THE MORNING NEWS

WASHINGTON.

The Garfield Monument Fund.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—It is announced officially by the Garfield monument commission that the responses to their appeal have been so liberal in all parts of the country as to warrant the assurance that their work will be consummated. While it is true that a suitable structure can be erected with the funds now on hand or promised, it is proposed to open subscription lists in every city and town in the United States on Decoration Day, in order to allow the general public to contribute to a more elaborate monument.

The Debate on the Tariff Bill.

The House resumed consideration of the tariff commission bill today and it is generally understood that the debate will not end this week, all attempts to come to an agreement having failed. Judge Kelley has a long speech in readiness, and the leading Democrats will speak toward the end of the week. Of the final passage of the bill there is serious doubt.

A Proceeding Worthy of the Bill.

The Chinese bill was practically smuggled through the House just before the adjournment yesterday. The House had refused to take it up at the opening of the session, but after the tariff debate had run awhile, and nearly all the members had left, not over thirty being present, the Speaker recognized Mr. Page to call up the bill and have the Senate amendments agreed to. The whole transaction is severely criticised today.

The Efficiency of the Signal Service Corps.

The bill to increase the efficiency of the signal corps, reported to the House today by Representative McCook, from the committee on military affairs, as amended by the committee, provides that there shall be added to the signal corps one major, ten captains and ten first lieutenants, who shall have the rank, pay and allowances of mounted officers.

The report concludes with a recommendation for the passage of the bill on the ground that the officers now on duty with the corps are not sufficient for the work demanded, and their number should be increased.

Investigation of the Soldiers' Home.

The Senate committee on military affairs, in their report of the results of their investigation of the Soldiers' Home, state that they found the institution in good order, but that owing to the lack of any military organization, there is very little employment for the inmates and less to amuse them. The committee criticise the employment of a large force of civilians for farming purposes in connection with the home, as in this case, they say, the amount of produce thus raised could be purchased for less money. The committee say the continuous and regular furnishing of vegetables and fruit from the institution to two of the three members of the board of commissioners gave rise to considerable scandal, which should have been avoided, and the furnishing of flowers from the Home to these officers at regular and stated periods, when there was an entire absence of the same at the hospital, was, in the opinion of the committee, an abuse in the management which should not have occurred.

Notes.

A special meeting of the Cabinet was held today, being a continuation of yesterday's session. All the members were present but the Attorney General. The Indian question and the cowboy troubles were under consideration.

Secretary Frelinghuysen has transmitted to Congress a draft of a bill appropriating $50,000 to defray the expenses of collection, preparing and packing of an exhibition of fish and fisheries and fish products to be held in London in May, 1883.

Medical experts testified today before the Senate committee on the improvement of the Potomac river front, that the flats were the cause of the malarial troubles in Washington.

Fred Douglass proposes taking a trip to Europe this spring.

FOREIGN.

Notes on Ireland's Affairs.

LONDON, May 3.—The Land League members of Parliament are trying to persuade Mr. Parnell to come to London in time to be present in the House of Commons on Thursday, when Mr. Forster will make his explanations.

The Standard says it is understood after hesitation and reluctance Mr. Chamblin accepts the office of chief secretary to Ireland. His appointment will be satisfactory to the extreme Irish party.

The release of the Land Leaguers was celebrated last night at Dalla, Belfast, Cork, Limerick, Londonderry and Youghall, with torch light processions, bonfires, illuminations, etc. General tranquillity prevailed.

In the House of Commons last evening, Mr. Gladstone, replying to Mr. Cotton, said he had not yet received the resolutions of the Canadian legislature with regard to Ireland. As to any action upon it, the matter referred to concerned the imperial legislature alone. As to the portion of the Canadian address relating to matters within the discretion of the executive, it had the government's close and constant attention before the suggestion contained in the address reached them in any shape from any quarter.

Danenhower in St. Petersburg.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 2.—The Grand Duke Alexis today received Lieut. Danenhower and Mr. Newcomb, naturalist of the Jeannette expedition. The audience lasted three-quarters of an hour. The grand duke begged to be remembered to all his friends in America.

An Italian Deputy on American Importations.

ROME, May 3.—In the Chamber of Deputies today, during a discussion on the treaty of commerce with France, Signor Bianeri, speaking in regard to the necessity of a European combination to make head against American importations, said that Europe had no reason to fear an invasion of American products. The United States, he said, would sooner or later force old Europe to solve the question. The disbandment of the standing armies would be the means of giving back to agriculture and the manufactures the stalwart arms shut up in military barracks.

Notes.

The Egyptian minister of war has ordered ninety Krupp guns.

News has been received from Slavonian sources that a revolt has broken out in several districts on the Bacchedi, Cattaro, in consequence of the enforcement of the Landwehr conscription.

The Austrian Reichsrath yesterday adopted the proposal of Herr Hallwich permitting the importation of grain free into Tyrol, Goerse, Gradisca, Trieste, the district of Adelsberg in Carniola, Dalmatia and Herzegovina.

Condensed Telegrams.

The United States steamer Brooklyn has been slightly damaged in collision at Montevideo.

Hon. John C. Palmer, of Jericho, Vt., yesterday received his commission as United States District attorney for Dakota. He will assume his duties June first.

A Boston despatch says that the $10,000 stallion race set for June 14th is off. The only entry was the black stallion Alexander, of St. Louis. The $4000 race for double teams has also been indefinitely postponed.

The bark Europe, which arrived in New York yesterday from Bremen, reports that on March 26th, in latitude 37° longitude 19°, she saw a bark of about 1000 tons on fire with all sails set, and picked up her boat containing some letters in the Norwegian language, food, &c.

The boarders in the house of Mrs. Robinson, in Pittsburgh, Penn., were poisoned yesterday, and two of them are not expected to recover. Nelson Fry, a boarder, who gave a domestic the poison with instructions to mix it in the dough, has fled. The domestic protests her innocence.

James Mooney, president of the Irish National Land League of America, has sent to Charles Stewart Parnell at Avondale, county Wicelow, Ireland, the following despatch:—"In the name of the Irish National Land League of America, I congratulate you and the Irish people on the destruction of coercion."

The commandery of the military order of the Loyal Legion of the United States have elected the following officers:—Gen. John Cochrane, commander; Chief Engineer Charles H. Loring, senior; and Gen. Wm. N. Grier, junior vice commander; Gen. Charles A. Carleton, recorder; Lieutenant Loyal Farragut, registrar; Paymaster George De Forrest Barton, treasurer; Major Ivan Tailof, chancellor; and Chaplain John Forsyth, chaplain.

Five hundred railroad laborers at Cornwall, New York, are on a strike for higher wages, and trouble is feared. The strikers compelled a number of negro laborers to stop work, and the sheriff was appealed to for assistance. A number of the ringleaders have been arrested and it is expected that work will be resumed today with sufficient force for protection against the strikers. Arrangements have been made for calling out the militia if necessary.

A special despatch to Boston from Andover, Mass., states that Andover trustees have unanimously voted to invite Newman Smythe to occupy the chair of theology at Andover, vice Parke resigned, for one year. This provisional appointment is beyond the jurisdiction of the board of visitors, and only awaits Dr. Smythe's decision, which will soon be made. Great pressure is being brought to bear on Dr. Smythe to waive personal feeling for the general good.

The fourth annual meeting of the Woman's American Baptist Home Mission Society convened at Boston yesterday morning, the president, Mrs. Thomas Nickerson, of Newton, in the chair. The annual report was presented and accepted. The report of the secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Andrew Pollard, shows:—Receipts, $6,629.18, expenditures, $5,856.25, with a portion of which 45 colored and Indian students who are preparing to be teachers have been supported, in whole or in part in the Baptist schools of the South and West, and the remainder was devoted to the support of teachers in these schools.

DR. FRAZIER'S ROOT BITTERS.

The above wonderful medicine is, as its name indicates, strictly a Bitters or Blood Cleanser, made from roots, combined with herbs and plants, such as are found in Nature's garden. I first used Dr. Frazier's Root Bitters myself for weakness of the lungs, catarrh and scrofula in the system, which broke out in pimples and blotches, and after doctoring with physicians and trying advertised medicines (including Sarsaparilla) without finding relief my discovery effected a complete cure. Frazier's Root Bitters are not a dram shop whiskey beverage, but are strictly medical in every sense. They act strongly upon the liver and kidneys, keep the bowels open and regular, make the weak strong, heal the lungs, build up the nerve and cleanse the blood and system of every impurity. For dizziness, rush of blood to the head tending to apoplexy, dyspepsia, fever and ague, dropsy, pimples and blotches, scrofulous humors and sores, fetter ring worm, white swelling, erysipelas, sore eyes and for young men suffering from weakness or inability caused from imprudence and to females in delicate health, Frazier's Root Bitters are especially recommended.

Dr. Frazier: I have used two bottles of your Root Bitters for dyspepsia, dizziness, weakness and kidney disease, and they did me more good than the doctors and all the medicine I ever used. From the first dose I took I began to mend, and I am now in perfect health, and feel as well as ever I did. I consider your medicine one of the greatest of blessings. MRS. M. MARTIS, Cleveland, O.

PERSONALS.

.....Mrs. Garfield expects to pass the summer at Mentor.

.....Mr. Franklin W. Smith, of Boston, has arrived at New York, from Antwerp.

.....Hon. George B. Loring has been taken suddenly ill at Washington from an attack of paralysis.

.....United States Marshal Bates, of Connecticut, who has been very ill, is now thought to be recovering.

.....Mr. F. W. Davis, an English clergyman, lately wrote to Mr. Bradlaugh asking him to subscribe to a church.

.....The Prince of Bulgaria is going to St. Petersburg, it is said, for advice and assistance in his difficulties in the principality of Bulgaria.

.....The heirs of one Colonel Jacob Baker, who flourished during the Revolution, are laying claim to fifteen acres of land in the heart of Philadelphia, valued at $315,000,000.

.....Minister Lowell has sent a cable despatch from London to Mr. Arthur Gilman, secretary of the Longfellow Memorial association, accepting the office of president of that association.

.....Lieutenant Danenhower was received by the Emperor and Empress Tuesday. Yesterday he visited the Grand Duke Alexis, the minister of marine, and Gen. Ignatieff, minister of the interior.

.....Intelligence from Minneapolis is that Bishop Foss of the Methodist Episcopal Church is so weak that he cannot raise his head from the pillow, and doubts are expressed of his ever recovering sufficient strength to discharge the duties of his office.

.....It is probable that Mrs. Alexander Carlyle will published a memoir of her uncle after Mr. Froude's work has been completed, in the hope that her recollections and impressions may remove the unpleasant picture which has been given of Carlyle in the "Reminiscences" and in the recently published biography.

.....Mark Twain and J. R. Osgood have been joined at New Orleans, on their Southern trip, by George W. Cable, the novelist, and Joel Chandler Harris ("Uncle Remus"). On Monday evening the party were entertained at Mr. Cable's New Orleans home. A private stenographer is making the trip with Mark Twain.

.....The Probate Court at Cambridge has rendered a decision which materially affects several bequests in the will of Henry W. Longfellow. The decision is that the erasures that occur are to be considered no part of the will, and also that the interlinentions are of no effect. This deprives each of the children of the testator's brother of a legacy of $1000, and makes void the legacy of $5000 to his brother Stephen. This decision is based upon the ground that a will cannot be altered except by a codicil. The will was admitted to probate, and Ernest W. Longfellow was appointed administrator with the will annexed, in place of the late Richard H. Dana, named in the will.

DANENHOWER'S STORY OF THE RETREAT.

Another letter to the Herald gives Lieutenant Danenhower's story of the adventures of the Jeannette's crew after the sinking of the vessel. From it we take the following:—

"The Jeannette sank about 4 o'clock of the morning of the 13th of June, 1881. Daylight found us encamped on the ice about 400 yards from where the ship went down. We had slept late after the exhausting work of the previous night. The day was spent by us in arranging our effects and in gaining rest, which was much needed. Many of us—indeed, quite a quarter of the number—were incapacitated for active work by reason of severe cramps caused by tin poisoning from tomato cans. Among the sick were Chipp, Kuehne, the Indian Alexei, Lauterbach, and the cabin steward. The doctor recommended delay until the sick party should have recovered. But the time was not wasted, and the rest of the crew began the work of dividing the clothing and stowing the sleds and boats. We had as provisions about 3,500 pounds of pemmican in tinned canisters of forty-five pounds weight each, about 1,500 pounds of hard bread, and more tea than we needed. We had some canned turkey and canned chicken, but these we disposed of in the first camp. We had a large quantity of Liebig's extract—a most important element in our diet. We had a large quantity of alcohol, which was intended to serve as fuel for cooking during our retreat. We had plenty of ammunition and a good equipment of rifles. The provisions were stowed on five sleds, each having a tier of alcohol cans in the middle, and on either side a tier of pemmican canisters. Another sled was loaded with bread and a limited quantity of sugar and coffee. On the 16th of June the captain called all hands and read an order to the effect that we would start at six P. M. on the following day on our march south; that we would work during the night and sleep during the day, to avoid the intense light, which might cause snow blindness. . . .

"The snow was knee-deep, the road very rough, and the ice full of fissures. Through the former our feet sank easily, soon wearying the best of us; over the fissures, if not too wide, we had to jump the boats, and we had to drag the sled over lumps of ice that would have taken a whole corps of engineers to level. But we advanced steadily, if slowly. We reached one of the black flags that had been planted by Ice Pilot Dunbar, but seeing that he had planted another one ahead of us we pushed on with the first cutter to reach that too. This goal reached, we found that we were a mile and a half from the starting-place, and that it had taken us three hours to make the distance. . . .

"On the 19th of June the captain called me into his tent and told me to go with the hospital sled because, he alleged, I could not see. I remonstrated, but without avail. I went back to my tent, naturally deeply mortified to know that thirty-three men were working for their lives and I was not allowed to help even at the cooking, although physically I was one of the strongest men of the party. That morning I started with the hospital sled, which was dragged by seven dogs, driven by Erikson, the doctor and I assisting over the hummocks. We advanced over rough moving ice with great difficulty about half a mile, and then set up the tent for the three invalids—Chipp, Lauterbach, and Alexei—to await the coming up of the rest of the party. I myself would never go inside the hospital tent. Thus the survivors trudged along, the well heavily handicapped by the six or seven who furnished no motive power at all. Twenty-one men did all the work for the thirty-three. At the end of the first week the captain found by observation that the drift had more than neutralized the way covered by our advance; that, in fact, we had lost twenty-seven miles by the drift to the northwest in excess of our march to the south. This, of course, we kept a profound secret. . . .

"We left Bennett Island about the 4th of August. We were then fifty-three days out from the place where the Jeannette had sank. We were fortunate enough in being able to launch our boats, and to make better progress in the cracks between the floes. But we still had to keep our sleds for a short time longer. I have not told you much about the dogs, some of which rendered us very important services; but about half the number were now disabled by famine and weakness. We had forty originally, but about sixteen had died or been killed by the others during the two winters in the ice. After the stock of dog-food gave out and the scarcity of game, there were long periods of starvation for the poor brutes. Each man had a favorite animal, and would share his own rations with him, but this was not sufficient. At Bennett Island we had, I think, still twenty-three left, and the day before leaving eleven of the poorest of these were shot. We took the remaining twelve in the boats, but in passing close to big floe pieces these gave us a great deal of trouble by jumping out and running away. Finally Kasmatka and Sawyer were the only two that had sense enough to remain by us. For the next eighteen days we were working between floe pieces, and sometimes making us much as ten miles a day on our course to the southwest. Several times a day we would have to haul the boats out and make portages across the large floe pieces that barred our progress. This was very severe work. We had at this time retained only the boat sleds, having left the provision sleds and all superfluous articles on a floe piece about August 6. We now worked during the day and slept during the night."

A FATHER'S PLAN TO SAVE HIS SON.

Originality of conception and vigor in execution alike characterize the expedient adopted a few days ago by a Parisian father to obtain his only son's exemption from the conscription of 1882. The youth, it appears, had drawn a "bad number," and the prospects of his exposure to the perils and fatigues of military service plunged his mother into such dark depths of despair that her husband, unable to endure the contemplation of her sore affliction, made up his mind one day to take a measure which could not fail to avert the threatened separation of mother and son. While they were weeping in one another's arms he suddenly clasped them both in a convulsive embrace, murmured the word "Adieu!" and rushed from his house to the nearest bridge over the Seine, where he sprang, head foremost into the river. Fortunately, some boatmen who saw him fall promptly put off from the quay and succeeded with considerable difficulty in rescuing him alive but insensible. He was conveyed to the morgue and there stripped in order to be subjected to the usual restorative process of violent friction. In accordance with the regulations of that institution his clothes were searched, with a view to establishing his identity, and in his pocket-book was found a sheet of note paper upon which he had written down his name, address and the following touching sentence:—"The child shall not be parted from his mother; he is a widow's only son." Never yet, in all probability, has a tale of sublime self-sacrifice been told in so few words.—[London Telegraph.

The weather reports from Central Europe are anything but encouraging in an agricultural point of view. Recent advices by mail report that in the Tyrol and the Salzkammergut the snow is several feet deep; the locomotives on the railways are running with snow plows; and locomotion in the towns has to be carried on with sledges, as in the depth of a severe winter. The fruit crops have been very seriously injured, the vintage especially. In most of the Austrian wine growing districts the loss to the vintage by the cold is estimated at 50 per cent., and in the Hungarian, too, the weather has been almost as severe as in the Tyrol.

Liver, Kidney and Bright's Disease.

A medicine that destroys the germ or cause of Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Kidney and Liver Complaints, and has power to root them out of the system, is above all price. Such a medicine is Hop Bitters, and positive proof of this can be found by one trial, or by asking your neighbors, who have been cured by it.

NEWPORT DAILY NEWS AND THE NEWPORT JOURNAL.

The Newport Daily News is published every afternoon (Sundays excepted), at the News building, 137 Thames street, by Davis & Pitman.

The Newport Journal is published at the same office every Saturday morning and contains a selection of the best matter in the Daily, including editorial discussions of the topics of the week, literary miscellanies and at least one good story, and a complete and comprehensive summary of news—local and general. The Journal is a large 32-column paper and contains a large amount of reading matter that is valuable to readers in town or country who desire a good Newport paper, but who do not take a daily from the city.

Complaints regarding the irregular or improper delivery of either paper should be sent to the office at once.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

The Daily News, $6 per annum, or 12 cents a week payable to carrier.

The Newport Journal will be sent to any address in the United States, postage paid, for $2 a year. A discount of 50 cents is made when the whole year is paid strictly in advance. These terms are invariable.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Ordinary advertisements, $1 a square, for the first insertion, and 25 cents for each continuance. Ten lines, or less, in this type, make a square. Advertisements in reading matter are charged for, at 50 per cent. extra and are subject to editorial revision. A discount on these rates is allowed on all advertisements ordered in the Daily for one week or longer.

Notices of births, marriages and funerals 50 cents each.

Yearly advertisers are limited to their immediate business, are guaranteed but five insertions in a week and are allowed twenty-five changes a year.

The circulations of the News and Journal being necessarily distinct, an advertisement inserted in both papers will reach entirely different sets of readers. As further inducement for advertisers to use both News and Journal, a liberal discount on the combined rates is made.

PRINTING.

The News has four steam presses and is a large and well appointed job printing office. All orders for work in this department will be promptly filled, and at reasonable prices. The patronage of the public is respectfully solicited.

THURSDAY, MAY 4, 1882.

The Irish Emigrant society has placed $5,000 of its funds into the hands of the Castle Garden authorities for the relief of Irish emigrants. Will somebody do the same for those indigent Italians?

The new steamer Rhode Island takes her place on the Providence line to New York next Monday night, and will alternate with the Massachusetts during the summer. We hope the new boat will be more successful than the old one.

The members of the Newport Rifle team have no reason to be ashamed of the result of yesterday's match with the Massachusetts team. The latter is composed of old men and quite a number have a national reputation in target shooting.

The President evidently means business in dealing with the cow-boys of Arizona, and has issued a proclamation ordering them to disperse on or before noon of the fifteenth day of May. If this is not done, military force will be used to suppress the rebellion.

It is the generally recognized theory that the present cool weather is due to the near approach of floating icebergs to our shores. The mild winter of the Arctic regions has caused a large drift of ice southward and it has just reached our latitude.

General Sherman has changed his mind. He once believed in the compulsory retirement of army officers, but on second thought he finds that he does not want to be retired and so says that retirement at the age of 62 ought to be confined to officers of inferior rank only.

It is understood that Dr. Newman Smythe will accept the offer of the trustees of the Andover Seminary to lecture on theology during the coming year, and it is rumored that $50,000 has been pledged to endow a new professorship on a more liberal basis than the present one.

The English steamship companies have often said that they would not be satisfied until they had ships that could make the passage from New York to Queenstown in a week and now they have done it. The steamer Alaska of the Guion line has made the passage in six days and twenty-two hours.

The Star route trial, considering what is known as the Dorsey indictment, is to begin today. Nothing will interfere with the immediate proceeding of the trial and we soon shall have the trial underway and it is to be hoped that it will be soon settled. The trial is likely to be very bitter from beginning to end.

The tide of immigration to this country is unprecedented and it is expected that last year's arrivals, which amounted to the grand total of 400,000, will be greatly exceeded during the present year. There is plenty of room for them and if a good, sensible working class comes here, we cannot be otherwise than satisfied.

The New York Chamber of Commerce has just issued a very interesting report on the business outlook of our country. It thinks that we have at last taken our position in the financial world, which we occupied before the war and the panic which succeeded the war. All the present indications seem to prove this and despite the prophecies of disasters which have been made for the last few years, we are on as firm if not a firmer basis than we have been for some time.

There was an animated debate in the Senate yesterday on the political disabilities bill, participated in by Messrs. Ingalls, Butler, Hampton, Voorhees and Hawley. No action was reached on the measure. The bill to create a United States Court of Appeals was considered for the remainder of the session. In the House a number of bills were reported and appropriately referred, and the tariff commission bill was further discussed, Messrs. Springer, Burrows, Blackburn, McKenna, Cox and Flower making speeches.

The greater part of the session of the national House of Representatives was occupied last Monday in appropriating sums of money—and in some cases the sums were enormous—for the construction of public buildings, and court houses in various parts of the country. The different members seemed to enjoy the fun, and as they received what they wanted for their own particular benefit, they were perfectly willing to help some one else along and so the appropriations were fairly poured out of the United States treasury. It made no difference how large the demand was, if the member was in the crowd his bill went through. Very many of the appropriations were nothing more than pure steals and the members of the House must have known it, but it was, "you tickle me and I'll tickle you," and so the money went. The whole business was a disgrace to the country. But we do not see any way of preventing it. The different districts will, of course, reward their representative for doing so much for them and an example, once set and not corrected, is sure to be followed.

Hon. Horace Maynard died very suddenly yesterday morning at his home in Tennessee, of heart disease. Mr. Maynard was a native of Massachusetts and the valedictorian of his class at Amherst College. He was the most prominent Republican in Tennessee and had served several years as a Representative in Congress from that state. In 1875 he was appointed minister to Turkey and served in that capacity until President Hayes appointed him Postmaster General. He was the candidate of the Tennessee Republicans for United States Senator at the last election and would have been a candidate again, if he had lived. Mr. Maynard was the father of Lieutenant Washburne Maynard, who is well known in this city.

IRELAND'S OPPORTUNITY.

The change in the policy of the English government towards Ireland has come and it proves to be as great as even the most sanguine dared to expect. In a single day a great change has come over Ireland. The attitude of the government has been completely changed:—conciliation takes the place of repression, concession takes the place of imprisonment without trial and without cause; a more generous legislation and an easier enforcement of the laws are to be given to the Irish people. The government has seen the error of its former course and acknowledging its error has withdrawn the causes of the trouble and will henceforth rule the Irish with a milder sway.

It depends upon the Irish people themselves whether this change of policy will be allowed to work to their own advantage. If they are prepared to recognize the concessions which have been granted, all will be well. Their leaders have been released; their rents have been lightened; they are to be relieved of the hopeless burden of arrears; they are to be given a better chance to become owners of the land. Will they accept these gains as a settlement of their grievances and treat with cordiality and respect the administration which has had the courage and the wisdom to make them? Or, treating these concessions as if wrung from an unwilling enemy, will they make them the basis of new demands, the starting-point of a fresh agitation? If the leaders in Ireland will acknowledge the claims of the government and meet them half way, the work which is well begun cannot fail to be finished and more benefits will accrue to the Irish than they have ever enjoyed. The government in making these concessions has shown that it means to be fair and it is no more than right that they should have fair play in return. Let the Irish people understand that they have their own welfare in their own hands and that a great deal depends upon their own behavior, and they cannot fail to do all in their power to aid the English government in ruling Ireland.

"WHY CERT'NLY."

It was in last spring that F. C. Burnand, the editor of the London Punch, made the first attempt to satirize the reigning folly of the time in England called æstheticism or "Oscar Wildism." He wrote the comedy "The Colonel" and it had its first production on the London stage. It was in the English metropolis a great and an immediate success, and since then has had a protracted run in New York as well as in Boston. The comedy is still running in London, having reached its five hundredth night.

The affectation of æstheticism, as practiced in certain art circles, is the key note of the humorous play. It was from that old satire "The Serious Family," that the author perhaps first caught the idea of the "Colonel," but his is a work which for bright dialogue, crisp sayings and effective satire may be justly declared original. The catch word "Why cert'nly" is an Americanism and it has gained remarkable popularity. The dialogue throughout is witty and interesting. The Colonel is a play in which one foresees the pleasant anticipations of the end almost from the beginning. Oscar Wilde's visit to this country has no doubt greatly enhanced the popularity of the play, and as we cannot see at present Oscar himself in Newport, everybody has an opportunity to see "The Colonel" Saturday evening, and be able to see and judge for themselves what "æsthetics" really are.

SUPREME COURT—MARCH TERM.

EIGHTH DAY—AFTERNOON.

The court came in this afternoon at three o'clock. Present Chief Justice Durfee.

The trial of case No. 921, Alfred Smith appellant vs. Samuel G. Curry and others, pending at the noon adjournment, was resumed.

The testimony in this case was closed at 4.20 o'clock, when Mr. Peckham began his argument for the defendants, closing at 4.50, when Mr. Sheffield, Sr., made the argument for the appellant, closing at 5.30, when Judge Durfee charged the jury who retired with the case at 5.50.

At 6.40 o'clock this jury returned into court and rendered a verdict for the appellant in the sum of $235.07 against Samuel G. Curry, one of the defendants, but found in favor of all the other defendants, that is, that they did not promise the appellant in manner and form as alleged against them by him. The court was then adjourned to 9.30 o'clock Thursday morning.

NINTH DAY.

The court came in this (Thursday) morning at 9.30 o'clock. Present, Chief Justice Durfee.

The petit jury with Thomas Carr Watson as foreman, were called to the panel, and the case No. 1259 E. and A. H. Hayward vs. Orient Insurance Company of Hartford, Ct., was put on trial; Messrs. Sheffield and Mr. Peckham for plaintiffs and Colonel Honey for the defendant corporation.

The plaintiffs in this action met with a loss of property by fire in February, 1880, and claim insurance from the defendant company to the amount of two thousand dollars with interest to this date. The company have refused to pay this amount and the matter has never been adjusted between the parties, though some steps in that direction have been taken, but failed to reach a settlement.

The case was ruled to the court, and Messrs. Peckham and Honey, of Newport, and Mr. Samuel Shove, of Providence, were appointed referees to adjudicate the matter, but Mr. Shove resigned the position and the reference failed. On the first day of this term the rule was taken off and the case placed upon the jury docket and now comes to trial.

The testimony in this case occupied the time of the court during the entire morning session, and at one o'clock a recess was taken until three o'clock this afternoon.

—Mr. W. R. Jenkins, from New York, has returned to Newport and will reopen his book and stationery store on Bellevue avenue on Monday next, with a very large stock of popular and standard books and a first class stock of stationery. He intimates his intention of offering residents some special bargains in books and stationery, thus popularizing his establishment with the townspeople as well as the summer visitors. Mr. A. B. Corbin as heretofore will have charge of the store.

A WEDDING AND A SILVER WEDDING.

A very enjoyable affair occurred last evening at the Casino hall on Church street, where Mr. and Mrs. Balth Schoentzler, well-known and highly respectable German residents, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding. The leading German residents of the place were present as the guests of the evening. It was a pleasing event both to the good couple and their many friends who met them. Just before the Casino entertainment a son of the host and hostess, Mr. John P. Schoentzler, was married at St. Mary's Church by Rev. Father Doran to Miss Maggie T. Sullivan and thus a wedding as well as a silver anniversary of a similar event was celebrated. The church was literally packed by the friends and acquaintances of the happy couple.

During the evening at the Casino Miss May Schoentzler presented a silver wreath to her parents and made a neat speech both in German and in English. A handsome silver medal bearing on one side the following inscription was also presented:—"Cologne on the Rhine. Marriage of Balth Schoentzler to Annie Thorson, May 3, 1857. Silver wedding May 3, 1882." The inscription on the reverse side read:—"Presented by Otto Guldice, May 3, 1882."

A substantial supper prepared with that hospitality and good cheer which is a characteristic of our German friends, a program of dances with music by the band from the United States ship New Hampshire, and a general social time were among the other pleasing events of the evening.

RIFLE MATCH.

Wednesday a team from the Massachusetts Rifle Association visited Newport and shot the first of a series of three matches with the home team at Paradise range. Owing to the lack of target accommodations the original program of two matches, one with ten and the other with five men on a side, was not carried out, and instead of this arrangement one match of 15 shots each was shot. As was expected the Massachusetts team won, though the Newport led at the start. The breaking down of a couple of men on the home team early in the match had a disheartening effect on the rest of the team. Mr. Farrow was captain and coach of the home team and Mr. Osborne of the visitors. The wind was strong from southwest and the sand blowing across the range bothered the shooters so that the scores made were considered very good. The scores were:—

The Massachusetts team, which included some of the best shots in the association, were pleased at their reception here and stated that the Newport team compared favorably with any of the teams they had shot against.

The next match will be shot at the Walnut Hill range Saturday, May 20, when the home team expects to make a better showing. The Massachusetts team left on the Eolus last night.

REPRESENTATIVE CHACE'S SPEECH.

The Washington correspondent of the Boston Journal telegraphed to that paper Tuesday night as follows:—

"The first speech in the committee of the whole, today, was made by a new member, Chace, of Rhode Island. There is probably no member of the House, not even excepting Judge Kelley, who has made a more thorough study of the tariff question or who has a wider practical acquaintance with its relations to business in all its forms than has this plain Rhode Island Quaker. Of course, this taking up of the tariff bill was the signal for a general hegira from the house, but the fifty or sixty members who did remain were well repaid for doing so. Chace's speech was in many respects the ablest one that has been made in favor of the bill since the discussion began. Chace was interrupted a good many times by Abram S. Hewitt, Tucker, Carlisle, and others, but he maintained his composure and readily answered every difficulty presented. He proved himself a match for all his opponents, who are among the strongest men in opposition to the bill."

THE AURORA BOREALIS.

Some forty years ago, when Sir George Airy was first made astronomer royal of England, he prophesied that the next great discovery in astronomy would be concerning the aurora borealis. He claimed that scientific investigation must soon discover the nature of this mysterious phenomenon, and that its connection with electricity, and especially with the spots on the sun, would lead to important results in solar physics. Sir George Airy himself did not pay any great attention to the fulfillment of his prophecy, but, at any rate, his words seem to begin to bear fruit, and various little premonitory symptoms point towards a revelation which may soon be given us in the almost unknown region of electricity.

It was observed, at the beginning of this century, that the sun-spots gradually increased in size and number during a period of about five and a half years, that they then decreased for the same time, then increased again, and so on—the period from one maximum to another being about eleven years. In 1878, for days together, there would be no spots large enough to be seen with a small telescope. Eighteen hundred and eighty-two has come, and the increasing number of spots show the usual activity of the sun's surface at the maximum period. This regularity is sufficiently interesting in itself, and no satisfactory explanation has as yet been offered; but when it was observed that the aurora had exactly the same period, and that the latter was connected with remarkable electrical developments, the coincidence was indeed striking.

Up to the present time the connection of the aurora with sun-spots has been received by the best astronomers with considerable mental reservation. The occurrence of great auroras in 1859 and in 1870-71 was strikingly in accordance with the theory, but still it was claimed that this might have been merely accidental in both cases. "If," it was said, "we have frequent and brilliant auroras between 1882 and 1881, we may consider the connection established, and it will be time enough to go to work to find out the cause." The records of last year mention some remarkably interesting spots, but the most ardent observer could find nothing peculiar in the scanty displays of the northern lights, and the theorists began to think themselves on doubtful ground.

The beautiful display of nearly two weeks ago was, however, a most reassuring one. It came just in time to revive a slightly wavering belief in the theory, and the numerous displays since then in different parts of the country have served to make the assurance doubly so. Already a few zealous astronomers have attacked the problem, and we may hope that within a few years the explanation of it will lead to most important discoveries in regard to the sun itself.

In the torrid zone the northern lights are rarely seen, and they increase in frequency as we go northward. It is a curious fact, however, that they are most frequent, not at the north pole of the earth, but near the Arctic circle, where the north pole of the magnetic needle is supposed to be situated. There is abundant evidence that the aurora is intimately connected with the electricity of the earth. During a brilliant display, such strong and irregular currents pass through the telegraph wires that it is difficult to send a despatch. Sometimes the current runs with such force that a message may be sent without a battery. Two weeks ago, while the northern sky was brilliantly illuminated by the rosy light, the extra currents set fire to the switch-board of the Springfield office, and only the timely presence of the operator prevented a large conflagration. Before the spectroscope came into use, these electric phenomena gave rise to the opinion that the aurora was due entirely to currents of electricity passing through the upper air from one pole to another. Spectrum analysis destroys this theory, and also reveals another peculiarity, inasmuch as the spectra of different auroras seldom agree.

The aurora borealis is, in fact, one of the most remarkable phenomena seen in the sky, but, in the words of one of our American astronomers, "it must be included among those things in which modern observations have opened up more difficulties than modern theories have explained."—[Prov. Star.

THE CHANNING CHURCH MUSICALE.

The concert at the Channing Church this evening promises to be a musical occasion of more than ordinary interest; and if we may judge from the inquiry for tickets, the capacity of the church to accommodate the audience will be severely tested. The program is of sufficient importance to find a place in our columns, since it will be seen that each of the schools of organ playing is fully represented by selections from the compositions of masters in each. The musical value of the evening will be enhanced by the work of the excellent choir connected with the church.

THE DIPLOMATIC CORPS IN FULL DRESS.

The Washington correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat says:—"The diplomatic corps in their full regalia are a body worth witnessing, and from the Danish minister, in his poppy-colored coat, to the Austrian and Russian ministers in their white trousers, each uniform is as different and varied as possible. The French, Russian, Hawaiian, Swedish, and Austrian ministers wear the grand cordons, sashes of broad watered ribbons, signifying the high rank they hold in the various orders to which they belong. Count Von Reust, the German charge d'affairs, wears more decorations than any other member of the corps, and the left side of his coat is pinned across with an even row of jeweled stars, crosses and medals. The English minister's court dress of black cloth is heavily embroidered with bullion, and is one of the handsomest uniforms worn. The acting Chinese minister wore the other night a garment of plum-colored satin, with collar of blue velvet, over a robe of white silk brocaded with circles and dragons, and the black satin cap always worn indoors. His hands were hidden in the folds of his voluminous sleeves, and the statuesque dignity with which he surveyed the scene through his gold bowed spectacles was admirable. The Turkish Minister and his diminutive little secretary wear a court uniform of black cloth, embroidered with gold; their heads are surmounted with fez caps of red felt, and long, curved swords dangle at their sides.

HABITS OF SIBERIANS.

Many of the habits and customs of these people are very singular. Along with much rudeness and simplicity, they have a high degree of ingenuity. At night, for instance, an Ostiak can tell the time very accurately by judging the position of the Great Bear; and as this constellation is constantly varying with the season, the operation involves on the part of the Ostiak a calculation of some magnitude. In common with all barbarous and semi-barbarous races, they manifest great dexterity in the use of weapons. In shooting small animals such as squirrels, hares, etc., for the sake of their furs, care is taken that the animals shall be struck on the head only; and in this the natives seldom fail, even though their rifles are very clumsy in construction. With the bow and arrow, which is the weapon most in use, they are equally dexterous. Their method of capturing salmon, as described by a Cossack officer who witnessed it, is peculiar. In marching through the country at the head of a detachment, he encamped one evening on the banks of a river; and on the following morning he observed one of the natives walk to a pool near at hand, into which he waded, and then stood motionless as a statue, his spear poised aloft, and his keen eyes fixed on the water before him. Not a movement indicated that life inhabited the figure, until, with lightning rapidity, the spear was launched forward and as quickly withdrawn, a fine salmon quivering on its barbed point. Three times in twenty minutes was this operation performed, and each time a fish rewarded the native's skill. And yet their cleverness is but slightly applied to the arts of life. The Tungooses, for instance, use bear and reindeer skins to form their beds; but as they have never discovered the art of tanning, these articles when not in use are buried beneath the snow, by which means the hair is prevented from falling off. This same tribe, too, are remarkably improvident; they will consume nearly a week's provision in one night, and go hungry the remaining six days. Over against this, however, must be placed their detestation of robbery, which is regarded by them as an unpardonable sin. —[Chamber's Journal.

A rose tree in the New Gardens, at Whitby, England, is attracting a great deal of attention from florists and horticulturists, as well as from the general public. It is of the description known as the Marshal Niel. It was planted about eighteen years ago, and the extreme growth horizontally is no less than 102 feet—48 feet to the left, and 54 feet to the right of the parent stem. The average height of the tree is 5 feet or 6 feet. Last year no fewer than 2,500 roses were plucked from it, and this quantity will be greatly exceeded this season, no fewer than 3,500 buds having been counted already.—[New York Post.

THE FUR SEAL INDUSTRY.

A gentleman who has had a long experience in the fur seal business, and is authority on everything connected with that important industry, states that there are present indications that the fur seal business has got to go through a severe decline in price. It has been subjected to numerous ups and downs since the year 1831. Sealskins at one time sold at $48, and within ten years were unsalable at $4. In 1879 and 1880 Alaska and other fur seals obtained the highest prices for twenty years. In 1881 the decline began and the sales for copper and Behring Island seal in March, 1882, were 44 per cent. less than the preceding year, Alaska 55 per cent. and Cape Horn 50 per cent. New seal grounds have recently been discovered, which will make the future supply abundant and will tend to reduce the price. In British Columbia this year there are upwards of twenty colonial steamers engaged in the fur seal fishery and the catch is enormous, being estimated as high as a quarter of a million for the season. Seal has also been found in large quantities in the Japan sea of excellent quality, and the yield is said to be unlimited.—[New London Day.

THE SECOND DAY OF THE MAY FESTIVAL.

The concert commenced promptly at 2 o'clock with the overture "Iphigenia in Aulis," Gluck's opera, which was first produced in Paris in 1774. Following this was a recitative and aria from the same opera. It was finely sung by Signor Galassi.

The next selection of the classical program and the piece de resistance of the afternoon was Schubert's Symphony in C Major. It was listened to with close attention from the opening andante through the Gipsy-like Scherzo to the remarkable finale, with its on-rushing effects and swelling crescendos. The overtures to Schumann's "Manfred" and Mendelssohn's "Ruy Blas" made up the remainder of the instrumental portion of the program. Neither of these excited great enthusiasm naturally, since that had culminated with the symphony. Madame Gerster never sang more finely than this afternoon, when she gave the aria from the Magic Flute, her clear, bird-like voice, beautifully modulated, rang through the vast auditorium so distinctly that all were surprised and captivated. She received raptures applause, and responded with a repetition of the aria. Materna, in the recitative and aria, "Ocean, Thou Mighty Minister," from Weber's Oberon, was not so successful as last night, though she sang with broad effect and in a thoroughly artistic manner. She was perseveringly recalled, but refused absolutely to sing again. Henschel surprised all with his effective rendering of an aria by Sophr. Campanini sang with his usual excellence and was received most enthusiastically.

An evening devoted to a worthy expression of Beethoven's music could not be otherwise than grand. The Fifth Symphony, one of the greatest works of this great master, was given tonight in the most satisfactory manner. To have heard three such symphonies, one after another, as Mozart's Jupiter Symphony, Schubert's Ninth and Beethoven's fifth or C minor Symphony, a memorable musical treat, each a master piece yet differing as widely from each other as the great composers themselves. The Symphony was a most excellent introduction to the Missa Solennis. It put the hearer in just the frame of mind for fully enjoying it. If the concert had stopped at the "Credo" the evening would have been perfect, and the audience would have gone away with the beautiful quartette of the "Kyrie" ringing in their ears, in which Materna, Winant, Campanini and Galassi sang beautifully. In this Materna displayed more richness and fulness than in anything else. She has sung, rising above the chorus and orchestra, superbly. The chorus of twelve hundred singers, the members of the New York and Brooklyn societies, were overpowered by the orchestra, and many times they went wildly astray in the "Credo." Mrs. E. Humphrey Allen took the place of Mrs. Osgood, who is ill. [Providence Journal.

THE PEACH CROP.

One of the great peach growers of Delaware says that many of the orchards in St. George's Hundreds, the peach district, have been pulled up, but that ten to fifteen per cent. of the tillable land is still devoted to peach culture. He assumes that the trees are healthy and in good condition and anticipates for this district a yield of 1,000,000 baskets during the present year. In Kent and Queen Anne counties, Md., it is predicted that, should nothing occur to destroy the crop, the greatest quantity of peaches will be produced this season ever grown there. The trees are full of blooms, and there is every indication of a crop of 3,000,000 baskets.—[Providence Journal.

The Common Council of Springfield, Mass., voted Monday night to establish 16 public electric lights, which are to take the place of 106 gas lanterns. They are to be maintained at an annual expense of not exceeding $3300, and will be lighted every night in the week until midnight. It was stated during the discussion that the expense would be about $800 more than is now incurred in gas bills.

The ice dealers of New York are asking double the price asked last year for ice. The crop has been small, but the falling off in the supply is not at all in proportion to the enormous increase in price asked.

In the wheat-growing sections of Virginia the indications are flattering for the largest crop that has been made for many years.

A bell weighing 2000 pounds was smuggled into the tower of Plymouth Church, Lansing, Mich., a few days ago, and the people thereabout knew nothing of it until they were startled by its ringing for service.

Stanhope will sell a large number of double and single harnesses at his store on Broadway on Saturday.

THE FIGHT WITH THE INDIANS.

Miners Flying for their Lives.

[Special Despatch to the Daily News.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., May 4.—The battle between the Mexicans under Garecia and the Loco band of Indians is considered a death blow to the outbreaks. A great many of the Loco Indians were killed in the battle. One hundred and forty-one whites and Mexicans have been killed by the Indians in the past.

A Tucson despatch says that the miners near Deming are flying for their lives. They have already abandoned Fresherman.

More Indian Troubles.

[Special Despatch to the Daily News.]

CHEYENNE, W. T., May 4.—There is a report that the Bannock and Snake Indians have broken out at Fort Washakie, Wyoming territory. The settlers are very much alarmed. The savages are said to number 2000.

Polar Observing Stations.

[Special Despatch to the Daily News.]

LONDON, May 4.—England will cooperate in establishing a chain of circumpolar observing stations. Fort Roe, in the northern part of Canada, has been selected for one station.

DUBLIN, May 4.—Parnell considers his release as indicating the determination of the English government to amend the land act at the present session and to abandon coercion.

THE ANTIQUITY OF PRINTING.

The Alta-California says:—At the last meeting of the Asiatic society of Japan, Mr. E. Satow read a paper "On the Early History of Printing in Japan." The art of printing on wooden blocks in China seems to be due to the accident of some one desiring to obtain in a facsimile of an inscription on a stone monument, in the first instance by the process of rubbing with colored matter over the paper, and subsequently by covering the stone with Indian ink, placing the paper against it, and rubbing. It was probably long before the plan of engraving a composition for the express purposes of inking copies was thought of. In 175 A. D. the text of the Chinese classics was cut on tablets, which were erected outside the University, and of these impressions were taken, some of which are said to be still in existence. Printing from wooden blocks seems to be no older than the end of the sixth century. It was not until the tenth century was well advanced that printed books became common. In Japan the earliest example of block printing dates from the middle of the eighth century. Before that stone inscriptions and seals with engraved characters were in use. The earliest Japanese printed books were of a considerably later date. Of those which have come down to modern times the oldest was printed about 1200. The use of movable type was said to date in China from the middle of the eleventh century, but the author had not been able to corroborate this statement. Movable copper type was used in Korea at the beginning of the fifteenth century, and even earlier, indeed, one book so printed appeared to date from the years 1317 and 1323. And even if it were, after all, not so old as it seemed to be, there were others during unquestionably anterior to the date of invention of printing by movable type in Europe. The invention reached Japan from Korea, and there was a distinct mention of Korean types produced by casting and moulding about 1420 A. D.

A SPECULATION IN BLACKBERRIES.

A good story is told by United States Marshal Chapman, editor of the Council Bluffs Nonpareil, on the Hon. W. H. Vaughan, whose term of service as mayor of that city has just expired, which is illustrative of the exceptional thrift of the latter gentleman. Mr. Vaughan is a native of Alabama, served as a Confederate soldier during the war, and at the close, for a makeshift, became a general utility man in a general store at an interior Alabama cross-roads town. The negroes would congregate about the store in droves and ask "Mass'r Vaughan" for something to do. One by one he would take them to the rear of the store, and in a confidential and fatherly tone present each with a half-bushel splint basket, and the proposition, 'Now, you go up to 'Squire Jones's blackberry patch and you just fill this full of the nicest blackberries you can find. Don't get any leaves or dirt or branches with them. Don't bruise them or spoil them. But you just bring that basket back here this afternoon, full of nice, plump, ripe fine berries, and I will give you half of them!" In this way, in a few weeks, Mr. Vaughan had secured a profit of $70 out of the labor of his colored brethren, upon which capital he came North in his search for wealth and honors, which he has secured. [Boston Journal.

FACTS FROM THE CENSUS.

A bulletin issued by the census bureau contains some interesting statistics in relation to the native and foreign born population of several states. The foreign-born residents of California are a little more than one-third of the population, and the number of those born in China is 73,548; in Ireland, nearly 63,000, in Germany, 42,000, in England, 24,000. In Maine the foreign-born are one-eleventh of the total population, and three-fifths of them came from Canada. In Florida only one-twenty-seventh of the population was born in foreign countries, half of these coming from Cuba or the West Indies. The number of residents who were born in Europe is about 3,000, out of a total of about 10,000 foreign-born. In Georgia there is only one foreign-born resident to 146 natives, and four-fifths of the 10,584 foreigners came from Ireland, Germany or England. The foreign-born in Indiana are about one-fourteenth of the whole population and five ninths of the foreigners were born in Germany. The proportion of foreign-born to natives in Kentucky is one to twenty-eight, four-fifths of the foreigners having been born in Germany or Ireland. One-seventeenth of the residents of Louisiana were born in foreign countries and four-fifths of the foreigners came from Germany, Ireland and France. In Maryland one-eleventh of the residents are foreign-born and four-fifths of these came from Germany and Ireland.—[Philadelphia News.

MATERNA AT THE MAY FESTIVAL.

The New York World of Wednesday, commenting on the success of Madame Materna, the celebrated German prima donna, speaks as follows:

The favorable reports of Madame Materna's singing had naturally raised expectation in regard to her very high—but as it seemed last night not high enough. However opinions may differ in regard to her singing, it must be admitted on all sides that her popular success was unqualified. Rarely has a singer awakened so much enthusiasm. Even in the remote parts of the hall, where the hearer could not be drawn into the charm of her personal magnetism, the applause was unstinted. But her artistic success was as great. The Fidelio aria is probably the most difficult operatic number ever written, for it is even more difficult than the vocal part of the Wagner selections which Mme. Materna sings tomorrow. Beethoven abused the voice so systematically that he either must have been totally ignorant of the rules of vocalization or else possessed of some special spite against singers. Italian prima donnas always approach this aria with diffidence—many of them it has brought to grief. Nothing more need be said in praise of Mme. Materna's method than that all these difficulties seemed to vanish. But no one thought of her method in the passion and the pathos with which she delivered this noble composition. Every note she sang came from the singer's heart and went straight to the hearts of her listeners. Her voice also has that carrying power which made even the pianissimos distinctly audible in every part of the hall. In response to numerous calls she repeated the grievous error of repeating only a portion of the aria.

Cape May will light up this season with the electric light. Some old inhabitants down there do not approve of the scheme, fearing the brilliancy may disclose some of the defects and imperfections of the place as a seaside resort.

Long Branch hackmen now forsake the plow and hang about the railway station "for trade." People looking for rooms at the hotels are asked $2 to ride there, but a little patience will give them the trip for fifty cents.

The business outlook in the petroleum region is rather discouraging. The daily production exceeds the consumption by about 20,000 barrels, and there is a surplus stock always ground of more than 27,000,000 barrels, while new territory is constantly being developed.

AN ENGLISH CASE.

The English courts of law are growing decidedly romantic. An elopement case in a novel form came up the other day before the Northumberland Assizes, held by Justice Williams. A certain Lieutenant Turner, of the "Queen's Own Borderers," ran away from Berwick with the fickle wife of his chief solicitor, who, instead of pursuing them armed to the teeth in the traditional post-chaise, sent a warrant after them for larceny, on which the lieutenant was by the local magistracy committed for trial for stealing a lady's travelling trunk, a black leather portmanteau, and a small quantity of silver and plated articles belong to the solicitor. Justice Williams in charging the grand jury to dismiss the bill said:—"The charges arose through this gentleman having eloped with the wife of the prosecutor. If a man eloped with another man's wife the notion that he could be said to steal either her bonnet or cloak or box seemed to be repugnant to common sense and law. It was not standing in the eye of the law, which meant and comprised a criminal intent. It was for them to consider, as men of the world, whether there was really anything to put the man on his trial for, as there was no theft in the man going away with the woman. Whereupon the grand jury ignored the bill, the Court refused to order the costs of the solicitor paid and left him to the fate of the solicitor in the opera of "Patience" pursued by the chorus of rapturous maidens.—[N. An electric-light man named Hendie is reported to have a contract for the sale of Prospect park at Niagara falls for $1,000,000, and to be getting ready to illuminate half the country by means of the water power there. Restaurant and Hotel,
Second block north of Postoffice,
NEWPORT, R. I.

My house is conducted on the European or American plan as may be desired. My rooms are of good proportion, well ventilated and are suited to either hot or cold weather. Patrons will always find my restaurant a desirable place to get a good dinner. Meals cooked to order at all hours. New York and Providence River oysters served in every style. RANDALL ATWATER, Prop.

BRAYTON'S,
Nos. 12 & 14 PELHAM STREET.

Many additions and improvements having been made to the excellent accommodations of this select boarding house for the entertainment of permanent and transient guests, those desiring first class accommodations at reasonable rates during the season of 1881, in a pleasant location, of easy access to the beach, and other attractions of Newport, will find it to their interest to make application as above. Families or persons desiring the quiet of a family home are invited to an inspection of No. 14 Pelham St., where every convenience may be had, including private table if desired. Special rates to commercial travelers and for table board. Open all the year.

CAMPOBELLO ISLAND

Was purchased in June, 1881, by the Campobello Co., which was organized under the law of New Brunswick, with a capital of one million ($1,000,000) dollars.

The incorporators are Quincy A. Shaw, Henry L. Higginson, F. B. Beaumont, Alex. S. Porter and E. C. Pike.

The officers of the Company are as follows, viz: President, Samuel Wells, of the firm of Bangs & Wells; treasurer, F. B. Beaumont; directors, Samuel Wells, F. B. Beaumont, George A. Goddard, Alex. S. Porter of Boston, and E. E. Chase, of the firm of Chase & Higginson, New York city; general manager, Alex. S. Porter.

As soon as the property was acquired, a new and beautiful Swiss hotel called "THE OWEN" was built, and opened in August, and finding the accommodation thus afforded quite inadequate, a larger house is now being built, to be ready for boarders in June next. The new house will be called the "TYN-Y-COED," which means in Welsh "House in the Woods." It stands on an eminence 100 feet above the sea, and commands extensive and enchanting views in all directions. "THE OWEN" will be open June 1, and will accommodate transient as well as permanent guests. "TYN-Y-COED" will be opened in the latter part of June, and is intended for the accommodation of those wishing to stay one week or more. Both of these houses will be furnished in the modern style, and their appointments will be refined and homelike in every respect. They will be under the management of Mr. T. A. Barker, late manager of the Adams House, Boston, and the Mt. Mansfield House, Stowe, Vt.

The Island of Campobello lies in Passamaquoddy Bay, about seven (7) miles northeast of Mt. Desert. It is ten (10) miles long, from two to three miles wide, and has a circumference of thirty (30) miles. It is irregular in shape, and its shores abound in exquisite details of scenery. There are coves, beaches, chasms and deep inlets; lofty and densely wooded hills and rugged head lands. The shores are rockbound, and giant cliffs overhang the sea for many miles.

Access may be had by the fine steamers of the International S. S. Co., which makes four or more trips per week; leaving Commercial wharf, Boston, at 5 o'clock A. M., Portland at 5 the same day, arriving at Campobello the following morning at 9 o'clock. Baggage can be checked directly to the hotels. The 12:30 train via the Eastern R. R. connects with the steamer at Portland.

The prices at this beautiful seaside home will be reasonable, and consistent with the care and efforts to make it a model of comfort and summer enjoyment.

Application for summer board may be made to T. A. BARKER, care Alex. S. Porter, Gen'l manager, Campobello Co., 27 State street, Boston, Mass.

A famous old general—General Rumpus.

A manufacturer advertises, "The strongest and cheapest bed in the market." He must mean an onion bed.—[Norristown Herald.

That is a bon ton family indeed on Fifth avenue, New York, who call the servant who washes and takes care of the dishes, "Our minister to China."—[Yonkers Gazette.

The season when oysters are not fit to eat does not injure the canning industry. Baltimore oysters can be put up in cans and kept until they are fit to eat.—[New Orleans Picayune.

"Where's your mail?" asked a mail rider, as he stopped at a small postoffice on his route in the county of Polk, Ga. "Oh, never mind," said the postmaster, as he pulled at his pipe, "there ain't but four or five letters, and we won't trouble about them today."—[Rome (Ga.) Bulletin.

"Moving next week, I presume," said a New Haven woman to her neighbor. "Oh, but we've concluded to stay another year. The landlord is going to paper the dining-room, and—" "Indeed!" was the response, and as she drifted into the house and slammed the door she grumbled to herself, "I was so in hopes they were going."—[New Haven Register.

It was evening. Three of them were killing a cat. One of them held a lantern another held the cat, and the third jammed a pistol into the cat's ear and fired, shooting the man in the hand who held the cat, and the one with the lantern was wounded in the arm. The cat left when it saw how matters stood and that illfeeling was being engendered.

Poole, the tailor, was making holiday at Brighton, and one morning, on the pier, he met one of his noble customers. "Good morning, Mr. Poole," said the peer. "Good morning, my lord," replied the tailor, who then passed on. "Stay, Mr. Poole; I wanted to show you this coat," replied the aristocrat. "It doesn't fit me at all." Poole was a man of ready wit. He stopped, looked carefully at the coat, and then drawing a piece of chalk from his pocket, said:—"Your lordship is right; the coat wants to be taken in here, and let out here, and shortened here, and just a bit lengthened here;" and at each "here" he made a heavy chalk mark. "Now, my lord," he continued, as he saw a curious crowd had gathered round, "if you will just take that coat up to London, marked as it is, my manager will see that it is altered to your satisfaction." His lordship did not again commit the impertinence of "talking shop" to Poole.

THE HIGH PRICE OF BEEF.

The present unusually high prices of beef have led many of those who have been compelled to pay them to inquire into the cause of the marked advance. Persons in Chicago who profess to understand the matter attribute the present condition of the market to several causes, among which are the following:—The winter of 1880-1 was one of such unusual severity that 15 per cent. of the cattle on the plains perished from exposure. These were largely animals that would have reached the market last year. The immigration to the new territories has been very large, causing an unusual demand for cattle to stock new ranches and farms. The scarcity of corn in many sections and its high price everywhere have prevented the feeding of cattle for the market. Such cattle will not reach the market until they have time to fatten on grass, when there will be a decline in prices. Furthermore the demand for export is very great. Until the past few weeks the weekly receipts of cattle at Chicago were larger this year than in 1881.—[Boston Journal.

AN INTERESTING ACCOUNT!

Stone in the Bladder Expelled by Using Dr. Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy."

Mr. S. W. Hicks, of Pleasant Valley, Dutchess Co., N. Y., the son of Mr. E. S. Hicks, whose name may have appeared in this journal in connection with an article similar to this, was, like his father afflicted with Stone in the Bladder, only that his case was more serious than his father's. On the appearance of the disease the father advised the son to write to Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., who, he said, would tell him what to do. Dr. Kennedy replied, suggesting the use of "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy," which had worked so successfully in the father's case. Mr. Hicks, who had been assured by the local physicians that they could do nothing more for him, tried "Favorite Remedy" at a venture. After two weeks' use of it he passed a stone ⅞ of an inch long and of the thickness of a pipe-stem. Since then he has had no symptoms of the return of the trouble. Here is a sick man healed. What better results could have been expected? What greater benefit could medical science confer? The end was gained; that is surely enough. Dr. Kennedy assures the public, by a reputation which he cannot afford to forfeit or imperil, that the "Favorite Remedy" does invigorate the Blood, cures Liver, Kidney and Bladder complaints, as well as all those diseases and weaknesses peculiar to females. "Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" for sale by all druggists.

Windhrop Wrought-Iron Furnace!
Has been in use for the past seven years, and given entire satisfaction. I offer it to the public as the most desirable furnace on the market. Special attention is called to the new dust-flue damper and reversible flues, that are not found in the other wrought-iron furnaces. The dust-flue damper prevents escape of dust when shaking down; the reversible flues cause the flames to sweep the entire surface of the wrought-iron drum, thereby securing much greater radiation of heat, and consequently a great saving in fuel. Cost less to keep in repair than any other furnaces. Are powerful heaters, with moderate consumption of coal. I have sold over 70 in this city. Sold by

A SPRING DEFENCE.
How to Repel the Assaults of Ill Health—Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy Means Something for You.
The months of March, April and May are the three successive arches of a bridge which connects the season of ice and sleet with that of bruces and roses. No less in respect of health than of outward natural phenomena is this true. Spring is a trying season for invalids, and particularly for those who either suffer, or are liable to suffer, from Biliousness, Kidney Complaints and Constipation of the Bowels, and for women who are chronically subject to any of the long catalogue of physical ailments to which their delicate sex is heir. Indications of disease in spring should be looked to at once. A fatal attack may result from neglect or a disordered condition of the bowels. The corner of prevention may be had where tons of cure—or attempted cure—may be unavailing. Are you vexed or troubled in spring with indigestion, torpid or disordered liver, want of appetite, constipation, or a feverish state of the skin? If so, take without an hour's unnecessary delay Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY. No medicine is so harmless and yet so quick and positive in its action. It is Nature's own idea, condensed and made tangible by human skill. Do not leave home when going upon a journey without a bottle of it in your valise. You cannot possibly put one dollar in any other shape where it can render you so essential service. The FAVORITE REMEDY is also of INSTANTANEOUS value in action, for does not tear you to pieces with its violence nor make sick you with disgust. It frees the Liver from Bile and sets the machinery of your body into normal and healthy operation. Remember, Dr. D. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY. Ask your druggist for it and take nothing else. Price One Dollar a Bottle.
